Flooding was the big news for 1986, as the area was hit with the rising waters of the Pembina and North Saskatchewan rivers. Above, flood waters surge over the Easyford bridge on the Pembina River.

In 1986 the July flooding was the biggest story. Above, Const. Terry Pon from the county police surveys what is left of the Lodgepole highway in the aftermath.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

What is life in Drayton Valley?

A question hard to answer. In the pages that follow, The Western Review presents a selection of some of our best photos. They help sum up "A Year in the Life of Drayton Valley."

The photos represent only a portion of the more than 40,000 pictures Western Review photographers snapped during the year.

From the air, the Lodgepole road looked just as bad.

Even the oil patch suffered during the flood.

Drayton Valley lost a landmark as the water tower came down.

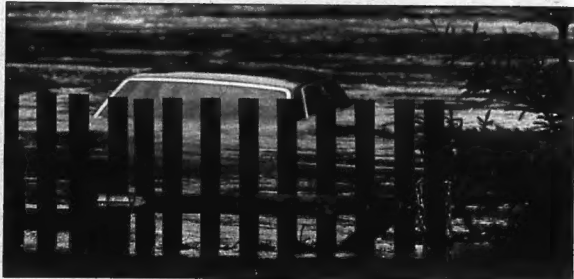

Some visitors to the area found the driving conditions worse than they expected.

VALLEY

Near Easyford the rising Pembina River forced Don Harris to exchange his truck for a canoe to make it down the driveway.

At Lindale, the national media came to report the disaster. Meanwhile, some of the area residents were hit harder by the flood than others.

Out west, the Brazeau dam held back as much of the flood as it could but in the end it had to open its spillway. The sight was both scary and spectacular.

The flood problems ahead were foreshadowed by the heavy rains in July. Rains that caused this accident, trapping a trucker inside his mangled cab.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

Good news was also apparent as the annual trade fair was a hit.

The flood wasn't the only tragic news, as earlier in the year four area residents died in an avalanche.

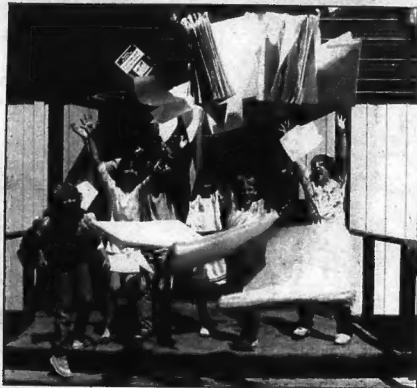

Good news came for Shirley Cripps, as the local M.L.A. was re-elected.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

In September it was back-to-school for the kids and the police as they increased their school zone patrols.

Just two months before this group celebrated school's end.

Christmas concerts were a big hit in the schools.

This group was all smiles as they ended their school days after graduating in September.

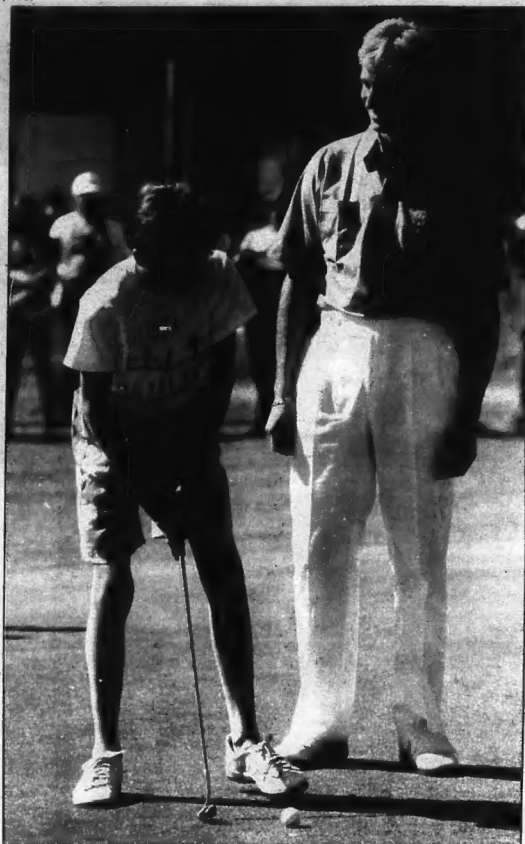

The Mad-Duck Press surfaced again at the high school.

Sturdi-Wood came to town and broke a bottle of champagne over the first load of logs.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

Wayne Gretzky and other celebrities also came to town for the Cowboy Flett Charity Golf Classic.

When area MP Joe Clark came to town he received a variety of reactions from the local people.

Special events were also popular as this apple-bobber takes a bite for Halloween.

On Valentine's Day Chris Kelly took a bite of a jello heart.

Snowy conditions made it hard to clean off the sidewalks.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

Just before Christmas, Santa-Claus paid several visits to town and the area.

Residents of the extended care got a visit from an Easter bunny.

The Blades became the Devils and were as hot as their name in 1986.

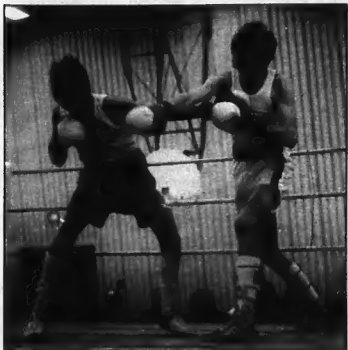

The Casars tasted victory with an undefeated season.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

At the Park Valley Pool patrons continued enjoying themselves. The pool also celebrated its first birthday in February.

Local boxers slugged it out when they hosted the Bronze Gloves.

The town also played host to the Western Canadian Hantam baseball championships.

At the annual Lions rodeo The Western Review got into the action in the chuckwagon races.

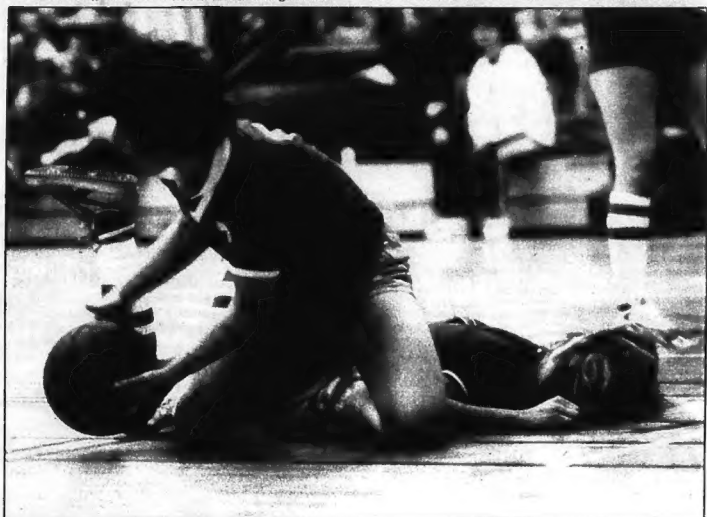

Then we headed up north for an exciting fishing feature.

Other sports in town included the Warriors, a football team.

A YEAR IN THE LIFE OF DRAYTON VALLEY

One of the highlights of the sporting year was the Tiggers capturing their second consecutive basketball title.

Opinions

Several decisions to be made in new year

A year of decision.

That, in a word, sums up what's ahead in '87.

First off, the Town of Drayton Valley will have to make a decision on spending an estimated $900,000 to renovate the Centennial Civic Centre to be used as an administration complex. This will be followed by a decision to build a new arena.

Then, they will have to wrestle with the decision to proceed, or not, with the annexation of Poplar Ridge.

An ailing Municipal Affairs Minister Neil Crawford has to make a decision on a new municipal district. The longer the wait, the harder the decisions get.

The Chamber of Commerce have some decisions to make. They need a new tourist booth and a better location. Add to that, some decisions on how to promote tourism in the area.

Al Owen also has some decisions. His Sturdi Wood strandboard plant is scheduled to swing into production this year. His decisions involve the troublesome U.S. lumber market and the possible tariff rates.

Sunwest Air have some decisions to make. To stay on the ground, or get back in the transportation business, linking Drayton Valley with Edmonton and Calgary.

The County of Leduc have some serious thinking to do. Do they give in and support, financially, recreation facilities in Drayton Valley? And, if that wasn't enough, a decision is needed on more money for the road into the Willey West campground.

Investors also have some decisions to make. Looking at '86, things weren't that bad in Drayton Valley. So they have to decide to build or not.

Whatever way the decisions go, the next 12 months promise to make some good headlines.

Final edition of 'Editor's Notes' for '86

This is the final edition of Editor's Notes.

Before we leave '86, some events of the past 12 months are worth commenting on.

First off, the suspension of a minor hockey coach until the end of the current season seems rather severe. The suspension could be longer, as the coach will likely decide not to return to the minor hockey scene. And that's too bad, considering the shortage of volunteer coaches this year.

It's encouraging to see the town and the Community Centre Society get together and work towards a new community facility. There was a time, not so long ago, when it appeared these two groups would never get together. And that had to be a concern, considering the lack of people who are coming out these days to work for the betterment of their home town.

The past year also saw the introduction of a citizen of the year award by the chamber and a move by the town to recognize athletic achievement. Both ideas are great.

A bouquet to the Chamber of Commerce for another excellent trade fair. Marty Prentice and Kristina Little did another 'superb' job, adding a fashion show and entertainment package. We can hardly wait until September, when they add a food fair to the event.

The chamber also produced OUTLOOK '87, a much-needed promotional brochure this past year. Now all they need is a larger membership, so they can tackle some bigger projects.

A 'bouquet' to DV. Air's Ron Wade. In July, Wade took Western Review

reporter/photographer Bryan Gullion on an aerial tour of the flood sites and in August, took our reporter on a fly-in fishing trip on Great Slave Lake.

Fish and Wildlife provided our readers with a different view when they took reporter/photographer Lorne Christensen on a chopper trip during hunting season.

DISAPPOINTMENTS this past year included the demolition of the water tower. Anytime a landmark is destroyed, it's sad. It's unfortunate more effort wasn't put forth to save it.

A lack of information coming from the new Sturdi Wood strandboard plant was next. People here don't know that much about the lumber industry. Maybe things will be better in '87.

And we hope the town will release the information on the studies they do. Starting with their in-house study on renovating the Centennial Civic Centre and the feasibility study on a new arena/complex. Taxpayers, whose money is being used, should be kept informed.

Drayton Valley had an eventful year...

It was an unusual year in Drayton Valley and area.

The single biggest news story of the year were the July floods, that left several people homeless.

Next was the 17-year battle that finally ended with a vote on a new municipal district. When the ballots were counted, 60 per cent voted for the establishment of a new MD.

Five Drayton Valley and area residents lost their lives in two accidents. Four were killed in an avalanche near Valemount, B.C. while on a snowmobile trip, and another was killed instantly when she and the horse she was riding were hit by lightning at a ranch near Cochrane.

An unfamiliar scene in Drayton Valley this past year was the long lineups at the unemployment office, created by layoffs in the troubled oil patch.

And, while building permits didn't reach a predicted $13 million, they did top the $10-million mark, which is an accomplishment in itself, considering the economy.

For a closer look at what happened in the past 12 months, here's a capsule look at the highlights:

In January The Western Review joined other newspapers across Canada and adopted a new five column format. Curling got underway in the new Tomahawk Agre Centre. Lorri Rhine and Dave Lahonen of Evansburg were the proud parents of the New Year's baby at the Drayton Valley hospital. The Evergreen Gas Co-op opened a new building. St. Anthony's Church announced plans for a new $800,000 facility. A dozen volunteers signed up to sit on the Drayton Valley Community Centre Society and work toward an all-purpose facility. Betty McGee was elected the first woman president of the Royal Canadian Legion. Eldorado school secretary Barb Dean retired after 18 years. The Westwinds Motor Inn was found not guilty of serving liquor to a minor. Later in the year, the Black Gold was also found not guilty on the same charge. John and Lena Evaniche won $185,664 in the Lotto West draw.

In February, six men were injured in an oilfield flash fire near Lodgepole. Renovations totalling $1,568,825 were awarded for the H.W. Pickup school. The annual handicap charity auction raised $10,700. Talks got underway on the formation of a new municipal district. Incumbent Shirley Cripps won Progressive Conservative nomination over Norm Bittner and Gary Cavanagh.

In March, DV Air expanded by adding a Piper Aztec. Charges were laid after the referee and linesmen were attacked as they left the ice at the Centennial Civic Centre. Sunwest Airlines of Calgary announced five-day-a-week service linking Drayton Valley with Edmonton and Calgary. The United Church revealed plans for a $100,000 addition.

In April, the area was saddened when four area residents were killed in an avalanche near Valemount, B.C. The four included 21-year-old Justin Celby and 24-year-old Gary Bowen of Drayton Valley, 25-year-old Jo-ann Martin and 27-year-old Rocky Martin of Berrymoor. Aboy Pollett Hereford captured the grand champion honors at the West Alta Livestock Breeders show. CEDA opened a new analytical laboratory facility in town. Town council had good news for taxpayers — taxes would be the same as '85.

In May plans were announced for a half-million dollar car and truck wash on 50th Ave. The town expressed their concern over the new interchange going in at the junction of highways 22 and 16 at Entwistle. Incumbent Shirley Cripps captured 5,329 votes in being re-elected to her third term.

In June, after just two months in business, Sunwest Air suspended operations, as loads had dropped off due to the slowdown in the oil patch. Joy Strocher, who was born and raised in the Tomahawk area, was killed instantly when lightning struck her and the horse she was riding during a trail ride at a ranch west of Cochrane. For economic reasons, 25 people were laid off or took early retirement at Amoco's Drayton Valley office. Town council decided to start collecting taxes from the curling club.

In July the Farmer's Market moved out of the Elks Hall due to a rent increase, and re-located in the Derrick Mall. Town council opened talks on the demolition of the water tower. The West-End Swimming Pool Society in Breton kicked off a fund raising drive toward a $500,000 goal. The town took a major step toward a new arena/community centre when they acquired 34 acres in the D.V. Leasing Subdivision, located south of the rodeo grounds. The biggest story of the month, and possibly the entire year, were the floods. Several area roads were washed out and some families were left homeless.

In August a 25-year-old Drayton Valley man, Darryl Boeltger, was in critical but stable condition after an oilfield fire at Pembina Oil Separators.

In September building permits got a big boost when the County of Parkland announced a $1,714,000 renovation project for the Elementary B school. The Drayton Valley Kinmen started a blackout newspaper bingo, with proceeds going to the new arena/community centre. The Chamber of Commerce trade fair drew a record 4,500 spectators to their three-day show.

After 17 years of battling, a vote was finally held on the formation of a new municipal district. When the ballots had been counted, 60 per cent voted yes. But, the final word rested with Municipal Affairs Minister Neil Crawford.

And a government study revealed it would cost between $25 million and $38.5 million to build a railway into Drayton Valley. The study recommended it wouldn't be a viable option, either from a private or public investment point of view, at this time. Block's Store celebrated their 21st anniversary.

In October concern was expressed over three deaths on the 50th Street access to Highway 22. Lights were installed on 50th Street south. Mayor Bob Mayhew was returned to office by acclamation while Tom McFee, Jean Saunders, Howard Olsen, Charlie Miner, Alex Salfi and Dave Lundberg won seats on town council.

In November, the new Sturdi Wood strandboard plant received its first load of aspen as stock piling operations got underway. The Community Centre Society got a 'big shot in the arm' when Amoco donated $10,000. Dr.

Lookmanje opened his new Pleasant View Mobile Home Park and at mid-month had 24 stalls filled.

The 12th month of '88 saw the Chamber of Commerce unveil a new promotional book, entitled OUTLOOK '89. Environment Minister Ken Kowalski urged the chamber to get out and promote tourism. The Village of Evansburg was talking amalgamation with Entwistle. Lil Ross was chosen as the first recipient of Drayton Valley's citizen-of-the-year award. Town council and the Community Centre Society met and agreed on phase one of the complex. The Drayton Valley Players received strong reviews for their recent production of OLIVER. Building permits topped the $10-million mark, the best since '82. The water tower was torn down. And, the mayor hinted that annexation of Poplar Ridge wasn't that far off.

Lots of sports action in '86 ...

By Lorne Christensen
In January former Drayton Valley figure skater club member Doug Pankewicz came home to Edmonton with the Ice Capades. The proposed community complex society got off the ground with their first meeting in mid-January. At the annual Olmest's bonspiel Jack Stader from Nisku came out on top. Hard luck continued for the junior Blades with a six-game losing streak. But Trent Pankewicz helped turn the team around and put them back on the winning trail. Drayton Valley also got a visit from Tony Lenzi on his $10,000 trip to Alaska and back during January. Lenzi was raising money for the March of Dimes and had left Minnesota in December. Minor hockey week was a success and included a visit from Edmonton Oilers Dave Hunter. Up north in Evansburg the Barrs brothers, Bruce and Barry, were selected to play on the Alberta volleyball team for the Canada Games.

In February the ice show was a dazzling affair while the Park Valley rink celebrated their first birth day. Three Drayton Valley boxers picked up gold medals at the provincial boxing championships. The Blades continued their comeback although February did see them lose in overtime to Rocky after trying it up with 16 seconds left.

The Blades moved into the playoffs against the favored Rimbye squad and pushed the Rimbye team to seven games before losing out. The pool saw its 100,000th swimmer while Wanda Blair's rink won the ladies' bonspiel. In the mixed bonspiel Don Maciborsky's rink clinched the title in an exciting final. Tony Lenzi, hampered by lack of snow, made his way back through Drayton Valley on his cross country trek. In judo, Tracey and Terri Uselman won gold medals at the provincials. On the national scale, local boxer Randy McQuig earned a berth in the national championships in Whitehorse. Meanwhile, local funny car driver Brad Janishevski became a member of the only Canadian team on the double A nitro circuit.

In April, the Tigers, as hosts, captured their second straight provincial ladies' basketball crown. Lynette Taal was also named the tournament's MVP for the second straight time. The Derrick boxing club held a local card headlining Randy McQuig, warming up for the nationals. David Lingard and Deryk Hamilton won gold medals at the Western Canadian martial arts championships while the Icehaws won the Olmest's hockey league over Mobil. The group pushing a community complex continued gaining momentum and the Drayton Valley golf club moved towards expansion.

In May, minor soccer kicked off another year while the Lindale rodeo drew a good crowd despite cloudy conditions. Highland dancer Shannon Bredin made the headlines again for earning a spot at the Canadian championships and dominating a competition held in Drayton Valley. A controversial call at the Western Canadian kickboxing championships prevented Drayton Valley from repeating as team champs. On the individual scale at the tournament the club captured five gold medals. In Alder Flats handbreds turned out for the annual race meet under sunny skies. Ceasars started things off right, winning easily in the first soccer match of the year. Meanwhile, baseball season was well underway.

In June the month started off with rodeo action at the Millbank Stampede while the soccer Ceasars continued their winning ways. Laura Barker cleaned up at the bowling awards ceremony while golfer/dentist Hank Shimbashi won his fifth Olmest's trophy. Marti McKinlay announced her plans to seek the presidency of minor hockey and the Ulemaan twins earned a chance at the nationals in Nova Scotia. Frank Maddock students Colin Reich, Lane Kwiatkowski and Doug Bacon competed in the provincial track and field championships. Locally, the annual Lion's rodeo ran into heavy rains and was forced to cancel the second day of activities. Local runners Joe MacLellan and Rick Watrich competed in the Banff/Jasper relay. At Easyford the logger's festival went off well as Leila Tucker won the ladies' golf title.

July saw the Warriors, a tackle football team, form in town. The California Cuties, a comedy baseball team, put on a show while loggers battled it out at Breton Lumberjack Days. Minor soccer closed out their season and the town honored area athletes for their achievements at the first of an annual affair. Jeff Smith put his way to a third RCMP golf title along with the men's open crown while fellow golfer Blair Shimbashi captured the junior crown. Ceasars, continued their unblemished record as the Neptune swim club took second in their own swim meet. In Buck Lake the cowboys turned out for a wet and muddy time at the stampede while Penney's dumped the Trees to take the Evergreen football title. Shannon Bredin was second runner-up at the national highland dancing competition while Terry Regenwetter took his second county soap box derby racing title in a row. The flood hit the headlines next and affected the sports scene in several ways. The most predominant flood sports story was at the Lindale golf course where rising waters covered much of the nine hole course.

August started off on a winning note as the Tigers, Drayton Valley's oldtimers baseball team won the Western Canadian for the second straight time. Baseball was on the mind of most Drayton Valley residents as the town hosted the banam Western Canadian championships. Although the local Amdex Oilers didn't win, the success of the tournament was evident. The cowboys gathered in Tomahawk for the annual rodeo while the celebrities gathered in Drayton Valley. Local superstar Wayne Gretzky was one of the bigger attractions as people lined up to see stars in action at the annual Cowboy Flett Charity Golf Classic. Ceasars finished the regular season undefeated and spent the remainder of the month resting for the playoffs.

In September the mud was flying as competitors from across the province gathered for a mud fling near Buck Creek. At the Ironman triathlon Chad Anker edged Les Sigal in a foot race to win. It was Anker's second time as champion. The Blades became the Devils and joined a new league while another flag football season kicked off. Ceasars kicked off celebrations after they capped an undefeated season and won the soccer league championship. Near the end of the month, Fred Kreiser came to town as the new fish and wildlife man.

In October the Devils kicked off their season with a 13-1 trouncing over Spruce Grove. Gerard MacLellan won the high school turkey trot under rainy skies while slowpitch winners ERCH were on hand to pick up their trophies. Crude got 'sweet revenge' in beating the Brewers in the flag football final while Leduc won the local Lampighter's oldtimers hockey tourney. Kathy Harke and Whiskey Gold won superhorse of the year while Bruce Clemmer took on the curling club presidency for the coming year. On the rodeo scene Travis Sekura captured the Lakeland saddle bronc title with Seba Beach's LeAnne Bougerolle winning the Lakeland barrel racing. Local golfers decided to borrow more money for expansion and the Devils remained undefeated.

Sports review cont'd

November brought on an announcement of a $5 million facility planned at Lindale. New owners took over the golf course and made big development plans. Local baseball coach Ed Hutzal earned a trip to a California camp in the new year. At the Canadian Finals rodeo in Edmonton local products Iris Tuftin and Clayton Hines came home fourth in their events. Hines was defending saddle bronc champ. Things got ugly for the Devils as their coaches, Preston Yachimec and Connelly Dunham were suspended along with some Devils' players.

The high school Warriors volleyball team advanced to the provincials, as did the Evansburg squad.

In December Drayton Valley hosted the Bronze Gloves featuring local fighter Gerard MacLellan. The high school held a basketball throw-a-thon and raised over $1,200 for new uniforms. On the school volleyball scene both Drayton Valley and Evansburg lost out in provincials. Evansburg claimed a silver while Drayton Valley came home empty handed. The month was also a big plus for a new community centre. The town and the group behind the idea finally agreed on what needed to be done.

The judges were very impressed with Ev and Lyn's Beauty Salon, located in Poplar Ridge, which captured first place in the Chamber of Commerce Christmas light-up contest in the business category. Second place went to the Royal Bank followed by Block's Food Store.

No sympathy for robbers

The case of a Calgary store owner shooting two would-be robbers, wounding one and killing the other, has sparked considerable discussion about keeping firearms for defence.

If Steve Kesler's case were clearly one of self-defence, it would be easy to argue on his behalf, but there appears to be more to it than that. Undoubtedly the facts will be brought out in Kesler's murder trial, so further conjecture on the case in print would not be proper.

The discussion on the propriety of keeping a gun on the premises is interesting, though. On one hand, some say to keep weapons is to invite trouble. Others say if robbers knew a store owner kept a gun, they would be less inclined to commit robbery there.

One thing that is puzzling, though, is the apparent sympathy expressed in some circles for the robbers who were shot. Whether or not Kesler acted correctly is not clear, but there's absolutely no doubt that the robbers invited the consequences.

Canadian Occidental

Reader doesn't see plant as step forward

Dear Editor,

In the early months of 1986 Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. approached residents of its sweet gas processing plant near Ainslie, to seek approval to make the sweet gas plant a sour gas processing plant as well.

Canadian Occidental and the ERCB have been very cooperative with residents, providing us with public meetings and monies for consultants to help us understand some of the technical aspects of the application.

From the meetings and research, information has arisen that though the proposed Canadian Occidental plant will be licensed to emit 2.7 ton/day of SO₂, while larger plants such as the Ram River/Canterra plant near Rocky Mountain House is licensed to emit approximately 77 ton/day, the actual sulfur deposition from the proposed Canadian Occidental plant will be far greater than that of the Ram River plant.

It was also brought out at these public meetings that the level of NO_x emissions from the existing plant may be exceeding the current Ambient Standards.

How easily figures and the fact of not being aware can be used to make us feel comfortable with a situation. One has to wonder just how many plants in Alberta have been accepted due to lack of knowledge of the residents of the area.

With the high sulfur deposition expected in this area and possible current plant problems how can anyone ask me to accept this plant as a step forward? I wish you could honestly, with all certainty, tell me how this, plant and other sour gas processing plants, large or small, will affect my family, my livelihood, and everyone in Alberta in the years to come.

V. Long,
Breton

Compassion, but...

Dear Editor,

Listening, and reviewing the six o'clock news on the Journal, I could not help feeling compassion for the four Cappy children, so near Christmas time, is indeed an emotional time of the year.

However, I could not help but notice that during the interview with the parents, and their plight of being poor, visiting the food banks to tide them over, could you air, tell me why then, the parents of these children, who literally survive on macaroni, 49-cent dinners, consistently smoked tailor-made cigarettes?

Sincerely,
Mabel Sodergren

Course teaches basic first aid in four hours

Winter is here again and with it comes the seasonal hazards of winter driving.

Last year in Alberta, 22 per cent of all traffic accidents were a result of ice and snow, according to Alberta Transportation's Safety division. Of these, 78 were fatal and 2,881 resulted in injuries.

Of all the automobile accidents last year, almost one-quarter happened during the months of November and December. While most of these were property-damage-only collisions, 2,208 resulted in death or injury. Many lives could be saved and the chances for recovery improved by effective first aid at the scene of the accident, according to St. John Ambulance.

St. John Ambulance is trying to help reduce these numbers by offering its First Aid for Drivers program.

The course is designed to increase your awareness of how accidents happen to make you a safer and more responsible driver.

In just four hours, you will learn the basic first aid skills and procedures needed to maintain life until medical help arrives. The main issues addressed are:

how to control the accident site, which injuries to treat first, and how to care for the injuries most common in vehicle accidents.

You can help make a difference on Alberta's roads this winter. Get a group together and enroll in the First Aid for Drivers course. Contact the nearest branch of St. John Ambulance for more information or call the provincial headquarters at 462-6565.

Death of stallion under investigation

By Alma Johnson
727-2312

Jim and Ethel Robinson of the Brightwood area are home after a trip to Parksville, Telus and Valemont, B.C. to visit relatives.

The Ed Woods, Dick MacRae and the Norm Johnsons were among those who attended the 25th anniversary party for Don and Sib Peden Nov. 21 at the Elks Hall in Estevic.

All but one of their children and their families gathered at the home of Stan and Margaret Wolosyn to celebrate his birthday Nov. 22.

Ted Spuehler arrived home Nov. 22 after a six-week visit to his native Switzerland where he visited relatives and friends.

The Brightwood Cemetery Association held their annual meeting Nov. 25 at the Moon Lake Hall. The executive will remain the same for the coming year with Norm Johnson as president and Alice Wolosyn as secretary. A discussion was held in regards to getting more land and putting the signs up with steel posts.

Lanny and Donna Rogamy and family of Spruce Grove were overnight guests at the home of her sister, Charlene and Glenn Johnson and family.

Norm and Alma Johnson visited with Ralph and Violet Telford in Edmonton on a recent weekend.

Darlene Wolosyn flew back to her job at Rainbow Lake after a week off at home with her parents and relatives.

Some area people attended the memorial service for Ron Stewart at the Legion Hall in Drayton Valley Dec. 11. A very large crowd came to pay their last respects.

The annual children's Christmas concert at the local hall Dec. 14 was a success and enjoyed by all. Santa Claus arrived with a jolly "Ho Ho Ho" and passed out bags of candy to the youngsters. Coffee, lunch and visiting were enjoyed following the program.

Dave and Dorleen Banks and family had her sister Sheila and nephew Robert visiting for the weekend. They also attended the Christmas concert.

George and Lorrie Cameron had her parents as guests and also attended the concert.

Glenn Johnson, along with Jim Hansen of Bluffton, drove to Saskatoon, Sask. to attend some polled Hereford cattle sales.

Police are investigating the apparent shooting death of a valuable stallion in the pastures of Jim and Glenna

Keith recently.

Don and Spud Charrington attended the Christmas party held for merchants and employees of the Derrick Mall in Drayton Valley.

Wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from this news reporter.

Pelican mills reaches agreement

Pelican Spruce Mills and its independent loggers came to an agreement that should prove beneficial to both parties.

Following a meeting between the managers and a six-member committee representing the contractors, the company agreed to accept wood from its small contractors beginning Dec. 18.

A lack of communication between Pelican and its contractors is being blamed for fears expressed by the independents that new contracts might not be issued until January.

A committee member said the new contracts are smaller and fewer in number but expects this to be a temporary situation as the mill yard is presently full. Contractors were urged to keep the channels of communication open and contact the mill if they have any problems regarding their contracts.

Cadet honored

It was a proud moment for Regimental Sergeant Major Don Dashney of Drayton Valley.

Dashney is the recipient of the Gold Pin, awarded by The Honourable W. Helen Huiey, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, during the recent

By keeping the mill informed of their situation, contractors will allow Pelican to regulate its stockpile of logs so as to minimize congestion. Contractors were also cautioned not to limit their contracts to Pelican alone.

Duke of Edinburgh award ceremony at Government House in Edmonton.

Dashney, a Grade 12 student and a member of the 2561 Royal Canadian Cadet Corps in Breton, is the son of Jim and Joan Dashney of Drayton Valley.

Moore objects to proposal

Minister of Hospitals and Medical Care Marvin Moore has announced that he totally rejects the NDP proposal to close rural hospitals throughout the province. Moore said the proposal which was made three weeks ago by the NDP leader, would isolate many rural people from medical services and would see many small towns and rural communities fighting for survival with the loss of medical facilities. The minister said the 28 largest hospitals in Alberta account for 80 per cent of the hospital operating budget during last summer's with the other 100 active treatment hospitals all under 100 beds accounting for only 20 per cent of the budget.

Moore concluded that while hospital costs must be brought under control he has no plans whatsoever to close existing hospitals.
